LENTEN READINGS ENDED.

The last of the series of Lenten readings at the residence of Mrs. E. C. Phipps was given yesterday afternoon, closing with that beautiful and pathetic missionary story, Miss Toosey's Mission, the lesson taught being the influence of a consecrated woman in the cause of missions and the rich reward her zeal brought out for the Master.

"The Mansion," by Henry Van Dyke depicting in a realistic narrative, the true spirit of giving, occupied our afternoon. Selections from the writings of prominent clergymen of the Episcopal Church were also enjoyed and as the King's Daughters sewed busily, the hours seemed doubly winged, passing profitably and swiftly.

Men A. J. Villa Put In President Huerta.

Juarez, Mex., April 2.—General Carranza announced that Torreon fell at 10:30 o'clock tonight. The news was first announced to the world when the bugler in front of Carranza's office blew the notes of victory. The note of triumph, Carranza said, was sounded even before it was heard in Torreon, Villa denying the announcement there out of complacency to his chief.

Villa's Message to Carranza.

The translation of the message received by Carranza follows: "I have the honor to announce that after eleven days of fighting the constitutional army, which I have the honor to command, is in possession of Torreon, the last remnant of the Federal army having taken flight this afternoon."

"I regret that General Velasco has escaped with an escort of a few men and is being pursued. My loss will number 1,500 killed and wounded. The Federal loss in killed and wounded will be fully 12,000."

Corporate financing in this country last month approximated $160,000,000, a $10,000,000 increase over the corresponding month in 1913.

The Journal of Commerce estimates that the new capital issues by railroads and industrials in March totalled $129,835,000, against $118,449,600 last year.

By a vote of 213 to 36 the citizens of Berea showed themselves in favor of a graded school. In the early Spring, ground will be broken for the new building.

To an observer at the mouth of the Mississippi river, the idea that the region is a great dumping ground for a large part of the United States is most impressive. The land is being built out into the sea at an estimated average of about three hundred feet a year. In some places the rate is much more rapid than in others. In one place in Garden Island Bay, the land appears to have advanced 2,000 feet in the spring of 1912.

TIPS BOTH WILLSON AND COX.

A Louisville dispatch says former Governor Augustus E. Willson is being mentioned as a probable candidate in the United States Senatorial contest. Combinations between leading Republicans and Progressives are reported and Willson, running on a Republican ticket, is to have their support, it is said.

A dispatch from Frankfort also tips former Lieutenant-Governor W. H. Cox, now of Louisville, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

It would be another coincidence if Willson and Cox, both Maysville men, should again win out for these two big offices.

THE BEGINNING OF THE STORY.

One of the largest of New York's retail stores is now advertising "75-cent French bathrigan shirts and drawers at 39 cents," and "$2 French white hosiery and drawers at $1.19." These garments, says the advertisement, are "the last importation under the new Tariff." This begins to tell the story of how American manufacturers of underwear are to be undersold in the American market by permission of the Underwood Free-Trade Tariff. It is only a beginning of the operation of a Tariff law that was expressly designed to increase foreign competition in the domestic market. How well that design is working out is shown in the marking down of prices of imported goods to a point where domestic competition becomes impossible, and domestic production, wage paying and wage spending must cease. Such is the natural and inevitable workout of a "competitive" Tariff.

TAFT ON PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Former President William H. Taft at a banquet at the Canadian Club in the King Edward Hotel in Toronto on January 29th sounded a note of warning to the Canadians on public ownership of utilities. His statement was in part as follows: "Let me warn you to act with care in the operation of your great public utilities. Public ownership may be all right; I don't know. But I do know that public operation of the people's needs is a mighty dangerous thing to dabble with. The business of governing bodies and councils is not to operate; their business is to attend to the affairs which concern them, and they have no right to invest sums of money in utilities while more needed things are left in want. Let them who think otherwise try it in a small way," he said, "and let them who would rush ahead do so and then foot the bill, for I warn you again that a high tax rate is not a pleasant platform on which to come before the electorate."

The paper used by the Government printing office each year requires approximately 125 million pounds of rag pulp and 490 million pounds of wood pulp.

John D. Rockefeller is no longer a stockholder of the Union Tank Line Company. Some time last spring or summer he turned his holdings over to the Rockefeller foundation, and it appears that the foundation has since disposed of close to 6,000 of the 29,813 shares originally held by Mr. Rockefeller.

The Carlisle Board of Education has ordered the city schools closed during the session of K. E. A. to pay the teachers 75 cents additional each month to aid in paying the expenses of the attendance upon the K. E. A., and to send one member of the board of education to represent the board in the meeting.

A mayor of Philadelphia said he could rid the jails two-thirds of the boy criminals in the next year if he could banish bad plays from the boards of the variety theaters and put bad books out of print. An officer of the British Government declares that nearly all the boys brought before the criminal courts owe their downfall to impure reading.—Orison Sweet Murden.

CHAMP CLARK NOW THE IDEAL DEMOCRAT.

It doesn't take as much sense to be a good President as it does to make a good Congressman. A President has his Cabinet to advise him, while a Congressman has to think for himself.

The Monroe Doctrine is not dead, and my answer to those who say it is in the answer of that great President, Cleveland, that we are the sovereigns of this continent, and that no foreign nation shall colonize, without taking a chance of getting a licking from us.—Champ Clark's New York speech.

THEORY VS. FACT.

Notwithstanding the new tariff, the import prices of a number of articles show an advance; for instance—bar iron, pig iron, rice, coal, unbleached cotton cloth, cylinder glass, matings, cheese. Showing this by comparative figures the New York Sun says: "The import prices as published represent the price of the articles in question in the country from which it is imported, and the general advance seems to sustain the theory that exporters to the United States take advantage of the opportunity offered by tariff reduction to advance their prices, thus pocketing the amount of the reduction and depriving the consumer in the United States of the reduction in price promised him by the low tariff theorists."—Ironton Register.

THE SOUTH IN THE SADDLE.

The Philadelphia Press draws attention to the fact that "more Southerners are in charge of the big executive departments of the Government than since back in the 50s." There is a distinct emphasis given to this fact by the insulting discrimination and "crowding-out" policy against colored employees in the departments. In Congress it is just as bad. Southerners hold the chairmanships of practically all of the committees, in both the House and Senate. The effect of this is seen in legislation. The tariff law itself is an evidence of this. While the general tenor of the law is one for revenue only, whatever protection to agricultural produce is given applies to those raised in the South; Northern farm products must meet keen competition from Canada and South America.—Ironton Register.

WARNING.

In a discussion of the number of automobile accidents due to carelessness or incompetent driving Henry Ford said the other day in Detroit.
"These accidents do automobiling harm. They make people talk like Cornelius Hask."
"Old Corn Hask's little grandson said to him one day, pointing to the horn of an automobile that had halted for repairs:
"What's that there thing for, grandpop?"
"That, sonny, old Corn Hask answered, 'is the thing they tuck afore they run ye down.'"

It has been authoritatively given out from Washington that John J. Berry, editor of the Paducah News-Democrat, will be appointed postmaster in that city, to succeed Frank M. Fisher.

SOME AID SOCIETY.

We recently made mention of the sale of tobacco by the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church, in which we gave receipts at $90. The correct amount received from the sale was $129.28.—Bracken Chronicle.

HOW MUCH DO YOU MAKE.

A Kansas City plumber sued the city and the court required that he put $25 as a guaranty of the costs of the suit. He contested this action of the court, on the ground that he was a poor man, earning only $5 or $6 a day. But the court insisted that he give the guaranty, saying: "In fifteen years I have known but one bankrupt plumber, but there were hundreds of bankrupt lawyers." The particular significance of this item is not the allusion to the trade, but to the claim that a man who gets $5 or $6 a day cannot guarantee a $25 costs bill.

No man is poor who gets those wages. He ought to save something, and he is not worth much if he does not. If a man lives the right sort of life he can own a nice little home in two or three years on those wages. And he would be a happier and truer man in the bargain.

The warden of a Chicago house of correction has an infallible cure for the liquor habit. He tried it on three prisoners and they died.

Dr. Crocetta, Secretary of State, has been appointed by Governor McCreary to the conference on weights and measures. He may attend if he doesn't forget about it.

HOW LIFE IS SPENT.

"The days of our lives are three score years and ten," sings the Psalmist; and the man or woman who attains that age spends years of his life doing what are regarded as common daily actions. The average person of seventy has spent no fewer than twenty-three years of his life in bed, assuming that his nightly sleep has been eight hours throughout life, says the London Answers. Most people spend about fifteen minutes a day over the care of their teeth. The septuagenarians have thus spent almost a year in this way. How long have spent at table? Allow half an hour for each meal, and the answer years. They eat on an average half of bread a day. In a life three miles of leaves has been consumed, supposing that they are put end to end. Including coffee and milk, three hundred of liquid have been accounted for. An office man of seventy has put years in walking to the station his office. A woman of seventy, simple in her dress, has had years in clothing herself. A woman who has reached the span of life will have used 600 of boots between them, 400 dress shoes.

ARE WOMEN NEEDED ON JURIES.

Quite recently the grand jury inington investigated a correction institution and reported it in excellent condition.

It praised the Superintendent well, speaking of him as a most capable and scientific head of the institution.

Two days after the report was published, a woman interested in a small boy in the institution, paid him a visit.

She visited only one of the buildings.

What she saw was twenty boys walking through mud and snow with shoes so old and torn that they barely hung upon their feet.

A roller towel for the use of fifty seven boys as a substitute for handkerchiefs.

A furnace which did not properly heat the building.

Fifty single beds for fifty-seven boys.

Insufficient bed covering to permit the dormitory, where fifty-seven boys slept, to be ventilated at night.

The grand jury rendered a perfectly honest report of what they saw. They were men and men do not see the small details which make for proper house-keeping.

The one woman was a housekeeper and she saw.

MISS ALICE LLOYD

Again Riddles the Spectious Argument of Senator James, Who Opposes Woman Suffrage

She Declares "Progress Has Met Her Waterloo" if Ballot is Denied Woman

Having declared himself in favor of the autonomy of the State in determining the qualifications of its electorate and therefore opposed to the enfranchisement of women by Federal Amendment, Senator James addressed himself to the question of disfranchising Kentucky women and declared it inexpedient on the ground that Kentucky includes in her population a large number of negro women.

Here is a member of the Anglo-Saxon race, in a position of power and responsibility, proposing to hamper the development and advancement of the women of the most advanced race on the globe, his own race, because of the presence of a body of women of a backward race; to deprive the State of one-half the intelligence and moral sense of its most highly developed class because of a minority belonging to an undeveloped class to keep white women in perpetual subjection in laws made and administered by an electorate of which negro men form an appreciable part; to throw the negro woman across the path of advancing civilization and say: "Here Progress has met her Waterloo. Thus far shalt thou go and no further. And the Senator delivered himself of such impudent sophistry with an air of finality as if he expected women of good fortune and Cavalier stock to be silenced by considerations so unworthy.

Let it be freely and frankly admitted that the ignorant and immoral negro woman, like the ignorant and immoral white woman, is a social evil. Let it be admitted that the ignorant and immoral white woman, like the ignorant and immoral negro woman, is a social evil. Let it be admitted that the ignorant and immoral white woman, like the ignorant and immoral negro woman, is a social evil.

It was left for the junior Senator from Kentucky to "dig down" in the presence of a difficulty in the way of securing to the State the helping hand and heart and head of its women. Senators from other sections said: "The end aimed at is greatly to be desired from the standpoint both of justice and expediency. Let us do something to overcome the obstacle. Let us repeal the Fifteenth Amendment." The suggestion came from the far North as well as from the South. It was a suggestion, but it was a suggestion.

It showed that someone's brain was grappling with the problem, that the Senate of the United States was not through with a body of helpless quitters. If Senator James is right and there is no way for civilization to get past the prostrate body of the negro woman, never was dramatic justice meted out to a people in such dire measure. In her forest, most vindictive mood, Nature is saying: "You enslaved a race and now the women of that race, ignorant and degraded, shall hold in zed women in the world. Armed with the same power as their men, the negro woman would have voted with white women and the better element of white men in the interests of home and children to the everlasting betterment of both races. The problems of government that most nearly affect the child and the home are so elemental and basic that it does not require vast mental grasp to grasp them; it requires only the wish to put the interest of the home and the child first to cast a ballot right.

Since the menace to good government in the ballot of the negro woman does not exist in California and Massachusetts, Senator James would not deny the right of suffrage to the white women of those commonwealths because there are negro women in Georgia and Alabama. And thus it appears that while the great fundamental principle of recognizing the political rights of women in seeking world-wide recognition, the menace of the negro woman is local and because it is capable of solution, should be temporary and should not be used as an excuse for making an injustice and a wrong universal in time and space. When the women of the thirty-three states North, East and West, where the negro vote is a negligible quantity, are granted the rights and powers of citizens, they will develop and to exercise any talent and power with which nature may have endowed them will the men of the fifteen states contained in the angle from Maryland to Missouri and from Missouri to Texas be willing to have their women in political subjection to negro men, bound by the fetters of the ignorant and degraded of negro women?

What then? Repeal the Fifteenth Amendment? Great as is the menace of ignorance and bad character to free governments, the exercise of unrestricted power by one class is a much greater menace to universal development. The danger of a ruling class, be it large or small, is to perpetuate itself as such and to perpetuate a subject class by placing barriers in the way of its final emancipation. Any extension of the franchise has always come when the ruling class could no longer with safety to itself hold it as an exclusive right. It has always come after a long, hard struggle.

Ignorance and vice have much the relation to intelligence and virtue that darkness has to light. The normal individual of any race can be taught and trained, and whenever the proper means is used ignorance and vice diminish, whereas unrestricted power grows by what it feeds upon. Abraham Lincoln never said a truer thing than that "No man is good enough or wise enough to govern another man without his consent."

The trend of civilization from the beginning until now points to ultimate democracy, when every normal human being regardless of color, race or sex shall in the ballot box express his or her sense of his or her own needs, and of what is best for the common good. The presence in any government of a class politically dependent on the health and progress not only of the dependent class but of the whole body politic. We have suffered much from the premature enfranchisement of the negro man. Never was a more vindictive, vindictive step taken than the enfranchisement of the ex-slave before the slaves of the Emancipation Proclamation had ceased. But God makes even the wealth of man to praise him. Has not the ballot in the hands of the negro man been some protection to him. One check to the dominant class, little as the negro has understood its significance and value, much as he has at the instigation of unscrupulous white men prostituted the sacred privilege? Rather than take a backward step and franchise the negro man to make way for white women, better give the responsibility of citizenship to every normal adult and let all together continue the struggle onward and upward until there are no unfit. It is the only way out. Majorities will sometimes be right and many times be wrong, but in the long run the general trend will be better for all, at least the way is open to right wranglings without artificial barriers entrenched in caste. With free schools, free press, free speech, free religion, free labor, the majority will gradually work its way toward the light and the good will be soonest shared by all.

The intelligent, property-holding class should not regard itself as born to rule, but to serve by helping every man and woman within the borders of the State to become intelligent property-holders. Citizenship means sacrifice, not privilege, and certainly not pride of caste. Shump upon such laws that recently passed in South Carolina, forbidding white people to teach in negro schools. Such prohibition should not be made until there is a sufficient number of properly equipped negro teachers to supply all negro schools. As well prohibit white missionaries from bearing the message of the Cross to the most needy races.

The Emancipation Proclamation freed the negro from enforced servitude. It did not, because it could not, free the white race from the responsibility of the care and training of this child race, that is among us by no volition of its own. Even so will God bring good out of evil. What if the exigencies of enfranchising white women should result in a clearer apprehension and wider application of the principles of Christian teaching even to the extent of undertaking to make fit for citizenship the long-suffering, burden-bearing negro woman? Did Senator James intend to issue a challenge to Christian women or to the self-interest of white women to declare by their own solidarity of the race, that the common bond of sex so links the women of both races that the white woman must either train the negroes to rule with her white sister or allow the negroes to become a millstone around the white woman's neck?

The negro woman has washed and ironed and cooked and scrubbed and nursed babies and been tempted and made the victims of the powers that prey. In a missionary age what will the dominant class that she has served, for their own sakes as well as for hers, do to take away her reproach of ignorance and degradation? The Christian white woman will make good. They will see and appreciate the situation and large as is the task, they will with an all conquering faith undertake it so that as never before they will know the meaning of the words: "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove thyself, and it shall remove."

And the work will be more satisfying than bridge work. And the white man will help. Under one name or another, in one form or another, we shall hear of societies for the uplift of negro women. Appeal will be made to the best there is in them not to the worst.

Already the way has been blazed and the possibility of the improvement of negro women being demonstrated. Not only have great leaders in conspicuous instances begun the work of uplift; but many of the rank and file in inconspicuous instances, have shown what can be done. In the days of interracial education at Berea, a white man said to a likely mulatto girl: "Mary must be put at Berea. She is capable of making a useful woman; but in the streets of this town she has no more chance than a rabbit before the hounds and hunters." The girl was sent to Berea, was graduated and married an excellent negro mechanic. She is a faithful wife, a good mother, and a good housekeeper. There are many such women among the negroes and each case serves to show what can be done. Without the live conscience of this member of the white race, this Mary would in all probability be a yellow wretch, sinking lower every day, a distributing center of moral and physical contagion in the community. Every dollar and every hour spent in bettering the negroes pays a dividend and defamatory remarks from Governor Blease and Senator James.

And after all taking things as they are today and not as they will be tomorrow, the negro woman is every whit as worthy of citizenship as the negro man (and he will respond much more readily to appeals of rectitude when the nation and the blind-tiger are taken from the path of his republicanism). Fifty years ago this Republic enfranchised its negro men. In spite of trials and tribulations, of debauchery and corruption the Republic has grown and prospered—even the South, where the burden of the negro vote is heaviest—and we have less to fear from the negro woman today than from the negro man yesterday.

In Kentucky we can manage the negro problem and each State can meet the problem for itself. In Kentucky the whites have an overwhelming majority of a nearly homogeneous people, with centuries the advantage of the negro in education, wealth and all the elements of power. We do not have to stunt the development of the white race by continuing political disability and artificial restriction of our women in order to prevent the supremacy of the ignorant and immoral negro. We have the means to reduce ignorance and immorality in all classes and colors. The negro vote in Kentucky has never been a decided important issue. The vote of the negro woman will not change the proportion of the righteous, intelligent vote. If as Senator James suggests, it will double the negro vote, the enfranchisement of white women will more than double the force that opposes whatever of evil is in the negro vote. The good resulting from enfranchising all women will outweigh the additional burden of the negro woman vote. No doubt in the States where the proportion of whites and negroes is different, the advocates of woman suffrage are alive to the situation and will urge no ill-advantaged haste and no steps that have not been carefully thought out. These States will meet for themselves each the responsibility—what the destiny of States rights in volves. But the white women of Kentucky do not intend to allow the presence of the alleged 70,000 negro women forever to debauch them from the duty and privilege of helping to make Kentucky a better place in which to live and rear children. We cannot allow the negroes to lock the wheels of progress, rather must we break the chains that bind them. The work of emancipation is scarcely begun and the process will be good for the emancipator on the principle that the best way to save a man is to set him to saving some one else.

SALT FROM SEA WATER. Salt is manufactured near San Diego, Cal., by evaporating sea water. During the very high tides, which occur about twice a month, the water flows into a large storage pond, and after a short time is pumped into small, shallow pans, where it is kept until partly evaporated by the sun's heat. It is then let into smaller and still shallower ponds, known as lime or pickle ponds, in which it stays until it is so nearly evaporated that the remaining brine is about 60 per cent. salt and about 40 per cent. water, and where the gypsum, mud and other foreign substances are deposited, so that when the brine is drawn off into the crystallizing ponds, or "vats," as they are called, it is rid of most of its impurities.

In the bottom of these vats most of the salt in the brine then gathers in the shape of crystals, when the water is pumped out, being replaced by fresh brine. The operation is repeated again and again until the layer of salt is about ten inches thick, when it is broken up and taken to the washer. Here it is forced through water which is too salty to dissolve any of it, but which cleans it thoroughly. The salt is then taken up in wire baskets, sprayed with fresh water and passed to a conveyor, by which it is dumped on the stack. It is still "commercial" salt, however, and good only for tanning, pickling, freezing ice cream and the like. Before it is fit for table use it must be dissolved in absolutely pure water and crystallized again, this second process being repeated over and over again until all of the impurities are removed.—St. Nicholas.

SOUTHERN SUFFRAGIST

And Noted Civic Worker Of New Orleans Speaks At Lexington Tomorrow—Miss Alice Lloyd To Attend.

(Lexington Herald.)

Miss Kate M. Gordon of New Orleans, President of the Southern Woman's Suffrage Conference and for the past twelve years President of the Louisiana State Suffrage Association, will deliver an address in this city Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Cincinnati Court room on "Woman's Suffrage."

Miss Gordon is one of the most brilliant and most forceful speakers in the cause. She is intensely interested in all civic movements and club work and has been a leader in the social life of New Orleans for years. Her work in the field of charities and corrections has gained for her a national reputation, and it was through her personal ability and power of persuasion that a method was devised for the launching of a campaign, the result of which was the installation of a sanitary sewer, drainage and pure water for New Orleans.

As corresponding secretary of the National American Suffrage Association she became widely known and has lectured on suffrage in almost every State in the Union. She will be able to give a broad and comprehensive consideration of suffrage Friday evening. She will not deal with conditions in one State but will tell of the conditions prevailing generally.

ELECTRIC SIGNS!

The distinguishing air of quality which a first-class Electric Sign gives to a store is the element which gives a sign its greatest value as an advertising medium and investment. The impression it makes is good. It blazes forth to the public that there is business enterprise, merchandise and methods up-to-date. It affects the entire atmosphere of the business district. The stranger says, "It is a live town," and publishes it abroad.

It is the Sign of the Times.
